Fraudulent condolences for a Queen

Although this so-and-so has long accustomed us to this kind of puppet behavior imported from Washington, his blatant condolences inspire some analysis. But the comments of readers of his twitter did not wait and took away my pen to limit me to spread them.

To offer condolences when someone dies, whoever it is, is a dignified human reaction and when it comes to condolences for a Queen, it is a diplomatic protocol of other nations. But when it comes to a so-and-so for which, pretending to act on behalf of a nation where he self-elected without a single vote, it is a vulgar usurpation of function that transforms his condolences into a burlesque fraud.

It is the embarrassing spectacle that was witnessed in Venezuela, when the simple citizen so-and-so, Juan Guaidó, a former expired official, had the effrontery to sign an "official" condolence in the English embassy, which he also reported on his twitter in the terms of "We pay honors on behalf of Venezuela to Her Majesty, Queen Isabel II ...".

(Juan Guaidó is a Venezuelan opponent who has been president of the National Assembly, later proclaimed himself interim president in a public square, and currently with the support of Washington and some complicit European nations that are taken advantage of through "public" bodies that I believe monopolizes assets of the Venezuelan State. Despite his numerous widely publicized unlawful actions, he is still at large.)

Juramentación de Juan Guaidó 23-1-2019

Could it be that this so-and-so ignores that on behalf of Venezuela, its President elected by an absolute majority of the votes of its citizens, and also its Vice President, have the habit of honoring their duties as rulers as in fact they did?

As if that were not enough, it is on behalf of more than 28 million Venezuelans that the so-and-so adds "... We will remember her for supporting our country in difficult times... the United Kingdom has been a staunch ally of Venezuelans. Today we stand in solidarity with them."

Could it be that this so-and-so is unaware that under the reign of Her Majesty Elizabeth II, he kidnapped himself to steal a gold reserve from Venezuela, deposited in the Bank of England and valued at one billion dollars, that the Venezuelan people need for their health, food and other programs? Or could it be that this so-and-so wanted to thank personal benefits he received and still hopes to continue receiving from England?

Letters signed by Queen Elizabeth II contradict British ruling on stolen gold

Venezuela has 31 tons of gold stored in the Bank of England.

Although this so-and-so has long accustomed us to this kind of puppet behavior imported from Washington, his blatant condolences inspire some analysis.

But the comments of readers of his twitter did not wait and took away my pen to limit me to spread them.

"... And also in the name of Venezuela... Embarrassment!... What a shame and he also dares to write on behalf of Venezuela... All this is a shame, it is embarrassing... How long will this type of vermin continue to mock the law or is it that there is no law?... There must be a legal procedure that would condemn the improper powers of an individual posing as an official official of a government entity... There must be a high penalty... Incredible fiction of reality..."

The Embassy of England is hereby authorized to add these comments from Venezuelan citizens in its book of condolences.

Al gobierno interino de Juan Guaidó le pusieron fecha de vencimiento, según Polianalítica

Juramentación de Juan Guaidó 23-1-2019

El llamado «gobierno interino» de que proclamó hace más de tres años el líder opositor Juan Guaidó ya tiene fecha de clama: 1 de enero de 2023, según la agencia de análisis Polianalítica. De acuerdo con Polianalítica, los partidos Acción Democrática, Un Nuevo Tiempo y Primero Justicia no apoyarán la continuidad de la Administración de Guaidó, quien sigue siendo reconocido como el legítimo interlocutor de Venezuela por varios países, con Estados Unidos a la cabeza. El denominado 'gobierno interino' quedará sin efecto en enero del 2023», afirmó la agencia en su cuenta de Twitter.

El futuro político de Guaidó y de la administración que proclamó en enero de 2019 es un tema de discusión en los corrillos políticos de Venezuela. El opositor no ha dado luces sobre lo que haría si llegara a quedar sin el apoyo de los principales partidos del antichavismo, pero ya ha dicho que estudia presentarse a los comicios primarios de 2023.

En ese evento, la oposición aspira elegir un candidato que se enfrente a Nicolás Maduro en las presidenciales de 2024.
