Translated from English for Rebellion by Marwan Pérez

Merkel's comments reveal that the mentality of war in the West against Russia has existed for more than a decade, if not longer.

It is making it irrefutably clear that the United States and its partners in NATO have been planning for many years the current war in Ukraine vs. Russia, which makes the prospects for peace even more elusive. How to negotiate with a belligerent mindset so deeply rooted?

Governments and Western media accuse Russia of "unprovoked aggression" against Ukraine and demand that Moscow provide compensation dazzling financial and facing trials for crimes of war.

The bitter irony is that the war in Ukraine, which is intensifying dangerously and could become a nuclear cataclysm, it was sown by the United States and its accomplices. It is the West who is more responsible for this terrible situation, not Russia.

The former chancellor Germany's Angela Merkel (2005-2021) has been the latest source Western in opening up or lowering your guard. In an interview recent granted to Der Spiegel revealed the true roots of the war.

The revelation of Merkel was involuntary. Merkel spoke of calming the regime Ukrainian to end up strengthening its fighting force against Russia. He mentions this reasoning to justify why he objected. Ukraine joining NATO in 2008: according to Merkel, it is not that That accession was wrong, but it was not the right time.

As the Respected analyst Independent military Scott Ritter, Merkel too knew that the Kiev regime (installed by the coup d'état) backed by the CIA in 2014) was not interested in a resolution peaceful of the civil war in that country.

Politics Berlin's tacit was to buy time for aggression. planned against Russia. And this despite the fact that Germany, together with France was supposed to be a guarantor of the peace accords of Minsk negotiated in 2014 and 2015.

In others words, as of 2014 Ukraine was prepared for war against Russia.

Therefore, the Merkel's claim really is a confession of duplicity Western towards Russia, as Ritter astutely points out.

When the Russian President Vladimir Putin ordered military intervention in Ukraine on February 24 of this year, the order was force majeure because the offensive threat of the Kiev regime backed by the NATO had crossed the red lines set by Russia, a red lines that Moscow had repeatedly communicated to the West in vain. Therefore, the claims of the Western media On "Russian aggression" are propaganda that hide the real causes and responsibilities of war.

The head of the NATO, Jens Stoltenberg, and other NATO commanders have also admitted on several occasions that the coup in Kiev was followed by a mass rearmament of the regime by the United States and others Western powers. Between 2014 and 2022 Washington injected thousands of millions of dollars in weapons to paramilitary forces neo-Nazis. Military trainers from the United States, Great Britain, Canada and other NATO members were in Ukraine preparing The attack, even as these forces bombed and killed people in the Donbass. It was not a coincidence or a partnership Unfortunate, it was a calculated preparation for war.

This disastrous Perspective fully coincides with the comments he made to earlier this year former Ukrainian President Petro Poroshenko, the which one said never It was intended to implement the Minsk agreements, but were used cynically as a starting point for surreptitiously consolidating forces offensives to finally fight Russia.

You can criticize to Moscow for two reasons. You could say he should have acted before to safeguard the territories of Donbass. Wait eight years To do so has made the task even more difficult.

Secondly, it is regrettable that Moscow has once again been deceived by the Western promises. The whole Minsk peace process turned out to be A farce that was never respected by the Western powers and their Kiev cronies despite the rhetoric. It turns out that Russia was the the only party that took the Minsk agreements seriously. And you've paid A high price for it.

You might think that Russia should have learned its lesson from the way it They brazenly betrayed promises about the non-expansion of the NATO. From "not an inch" east to 1,000 miles towards Russia's borders, the current dangerous confrontation in Ukraine is a manifestation of systematic betrayal and relentlessly displayed by Washington and its NATO minions.

The answer Russia's intervention in Ukraine, reflecting the Total War, the avalanche of weapons from the West, the sabotage of the Nord Stream pipelines and the willingness to escalate violence, all This indicates that this war was prepared in advance.

The arrogant disregard for Russia's strategic security concerns and The rejection of any diplomatic compromise signals that the Western powers are on a war footing from the beginning, Ready to jump at any time.

Unscrupulous Some, it seems that the provocations increase gradually. States The United States and its allies are funneling heavier weapons into Ukraine, which can now penetrate deep into Russian territory. This week there were drone attacks on bases air located within Russia, up to 600 kilometers from the border with Ukraine. One of the targets in Ryazan is only 185 km from Moscow.

And yet, Washington officials with a forked tongue say that they are not encouraging the Kiev regime to arrive to an escalation. And that's after arming to the teeth with long-range weapons. to a deranged regime that hates Russia.

Moscow is trapped in a contradiction. He claims that Western powers They participate directly in hostilities. If that's the case, then it could be that Russia would take military action against goods Western. If Moscow abstains, then it will appear weak.

The puzzling is that the war plan against Russia is evidently a concept entrenched that transcends the current high political positions Western. As Merkel's comments reveal, the mentality of war in the West against Russia has existed for more than one year. decade, if not more. As we described in the Last week's editorial, the anti-Russian agenda in the United States and its NATO war machine go back at the end of World War II. That makes the challenges of Politics and diplomacy are even more overwhelming, because The United States and its henchmen are unable to negotiate, and Ultimately, they may not be willing to do so. Are in need of war.
