4 foreign troops injured in Helmand suicide bombing

3/1/2014

Four foreign troops were injured during a suicide attack in the Nad Ali district of southern Helmand province, an official said Saturday.

The bombing took place on a vehicle of foreign troops close to their base in Shavol Manda area of the district late Friday, the governor's spokesman, Omar Zwak, told Pajhwok Afghan News.

He confirmed four foreign troops were wounded in the attack. The International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) media office in Kabul said in a statement that one of their service members had been killed in southern Afghanistan on Friday.

But the alliance did not say in which incident the soldier was killed. The alliance did not provide the service member's nationality or any other details.

Taliban spokesman, Qari Yousuf Ahmadi, said the attack was carried out by one of their fighters, Abdul Qahar Mahajir.

He claimed 10 foreign troops were killed and two armoured vehicles damaged in the attack.
