Coordinated blasts kill or injure 10 in Faryab province

March 5, 2014

At least two people were killed and eight others were injured following coordinated explosions in northern Faryab province of Afghanistan.

The incident took place late Tuesday in Khwaja Sabz Posh district of Faryab province, local officials said.

District chief, Abdullah Masoomi, said the explosives were planted inside two pressure cookers which were detonated near a shop on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Masoomi confirmed two people were killed and eight others were injured following the explosion.

No group including the Taliban militants has so far claimed responsibility behind the incident.

Local officials blame Taliban group for the incident as Taliban fighters frequently use improvised explosive device (IED) to target Afghan and coalition security forces which normally lead to civilian casualties.
