14-year-old girl raped by 4 men in Samangan province

May 2, 2015

A teenager girl was gang-raped by a group of four men in northern Samangan province of Afghanistan, local officials said Saturday.

The incident took place in Dara-e-Suf district of Samangan province last Friday where the girl was initially kidnapped and was repeatedly raped by the men.

The district administrative chief Ahmad Ali Hasani said at least two men have been arrested in connection to the rape of the teen girl and are in custody of the police forces for further investigation.

Hassani further added that the two men were arrested after they were identified by the victim but the two other men have not been arrested so far.

This comes as the sexual abuse and rape of children have been rampant in Afghanistan, specifically in northern parts of the country during the recent months.

According to a government survey, around 65 rape cases were recorded in six provinces last year where child rape happens more frequently.

The survey covered incidents recorded between March and September last year where incidents on children as young as 1-year-old to 13-year-old were reported raped.
