Afghan students protest US night raids in Badakhshan province

5/24/2012

Afghan students have staged an anti-US rally to protest nighttime attacks carried out by American forces in Afghanistan's northeastern Badakhshan Province, Press TV reports.

A large number of students took to the streets on Thursday and chanted anti-US slogans.

The protestors said US forces detained 6 people, four university professors and two students, during an operation Wednesday night.

The Afghan police forces intervened and fired into the air to disperse the students. However, the protesters vowed to continue their protest until the detainees are released. The nighttime operations by the US-led forces have resulted in civilian casualties and increasing tension between Washington and Kabul.
