Heavy clashes reported in Zabul province of Afghanistan

August 31, 2013

According to report, clashes have taken place between suicide bombers and Afghan security forces in southern Zabul province of Afghanistan on Saturday evening.

A local security official speaking on the condition of anonymity said, clashes between the suicide bombers and Afghan security forces started after police forces recognized two suicide bombers who were entering the Zabul city.

The source further added, one of the suicide was shot dead on the spot while the second suicide bomber took shelter in a residential house.

He said clashes between the security forces and the suicide bomber is still going on in the area, and at least eight people including four Afghan police and four civilians have been injured during the gun battle so far.

In the meantime, local residents and eye witnesses in the area are saying that the number of suicide bombers were three, and two of them are still resisting the security forces from a residential house located near the provincial security department.
