Insider attack leave 2 border police dead in Kandahar province

November 24, 2013

At least two members of the Afghan border protection police forces were killed following an insider attack in southern Kandahar province of Afghanistan.

The incident took place in Shorabak district of Kandahar province late Saturday evening after a member of the Afghan border protection police forces opened fire on his comrades.

Shorabak district chief, Abdul Nafeh Baresi confirming the report said the assailant police officer managed to flee the area after killing his comrades.

At least three Afghan local police (ALP) officers were shot dead by their comrades in a similar incident in southern Kandahar province of Afghanistan late in October.

Insider attacks or green on blue attacks have been one of the major concerns both for the Afghan and coalition security forces which have left dozens of Afghan and NATO troops dead during the recent years.

Taliban group frequently claim responsibility behind such attacks, and the group earlier this year announced that several Taliban fighters have infiltrated among the Afghan security forces to carry out insider attacks.
