7/22/2011

Anders Behring Breivik is a conservative Christian who enjoys classical music and the video game World of Warcraft.

Breivik has been named by several Norwegian media outlets as the suspected shooter at a youth camp in Oslo, where 10 people were killed Friday and he may be linked to a bombing near the prime minister's residence that killed seven others.

On his Facebook page, which appears to only have been started July 17, Breivik mostly posted music videos and said his interests include hunting and bodybuilding.

Under education, Breivik wrote he studied independently, noting he has "approximately 14,500 hours of study" equivalent to a bachelor of business administration and masters in history, as well as "3,000 hours of study in micro and macro finance, religion ."

His profile also says he's a director at a company called Breivik Geofarm.

He lists himself as single and has five profile photos - four of which are headshots, and one of him at a wedding with two women, one of which is the bride.

A Twitter account is also being linked to Breivik, although there is just one tweet on July 17.

"One person with a belief is equal to the force of 100,000 who have only interests," he wrote.

The television station TV 2 in Norway reported Breivik had right-wing extremist tendencies and had two guns registered under his name.

VGTV reported Breivik was unknown to police prior to Friday's shooting.
